MARMOSETS IN CROCOPARC

After the opening of the presentation of Pythons and Anacondas in May 2019, the Crocoparc team is pleased to present to its public the white brush marmosets (Callithrix jacchus) from DREAM VILLAGE in Mohammedia.

White brush marmosets (Callithrix jacchus) are small monkeys native to Brazil, recognizable by the tufts of white hair (brushes) on their ears; they are found in savannas and forests, as far as the outskirts of the city of Rio de Janeiro.

These beautiful little mammals they live in family groups of both parents and their children; the young animals actively participate in the breeding of the last born. Females often give birth to twins after a six-month gestation period.

They feed on large trees, fruits, buds, sap and gum, but also on insects, lizards, chicks or eggs.

They are sometimes used for laboratory research.

If you take a picture in front of the monkeys, don't forget to say «OUISTITIIIIII» !
